FEATURED BOOK

Achieving Greatness

Managing Perceptions, Assumptions & Biases

Key Takeaways

Keynote and workshops can help country staff and administrators develop the mindset, values, and practical skills needed to build great foundations to attract corporations and investments. Staff can use PABA (Personality, Assumptions, Bias, Action) and FAB (Fairness, Accessibility, Betterment) to strengthen collaboration, leadership, and institutional culture while navigating change and political mandates. Administrators and leaders can apply these principles to build culture, resilience, and growth readiness. By connecting personal growth with organizational effectiveness, the session offers a shared framework for fair decision-making, qualities for success, and long-term achievement.

About the book

The book explores the challenges and imperatives facing individuals, large corporations, cities and nations as they pursue greatness. It emphasizes the necessity of frameworks that ensure that their values are continuously maintained, particularly in the face of persistent challenges and political pressures. These values can be instilled and nurtured through the qualities defined by PABA and FAB strategies.

Key Learning Outcomes

 Understand how personality and perception intersect in social and policy-making environments that define the social construct.	 Develop stronger awareness, governance, communication and management strategies to transform the nation.
 Recognize assumptions and biases and their impact on citizens, immigrants, integrations, sustainability, planning and development.	 Build confidence and credibility in high-stakes cabinet meetings and subsequent press releases about the long-term direction of the nation.
 Apply FAB techniques in real-world scenarios for professional management, accountability, and oversight to maintain greatness.	 Navigate cross-cultural and institutional dynamics with experience and centeredness.

Best For

Social Services | Ministry / Department of Culture |
The Executive office | Parliament Members | National Security
Council | Advisors and Lobbyists | Inter-Agency Committees |
Labor Department | Education and Civic

Drawing on history, leadership experience, and social analysis, the session shows how the lack of PABA management limits success, and how FAB, grace, and transformation can strengthen relationships, workplaces, corporations, societies, cities, and nations.
